

Geldermann's got to answer

OAKLAND — The ball is squarely in Harlan Geldermann's court.

Alameda County Supervisor Joseph Bort threw it there last week when he said he wants more specific information about Geldermann's proposed Las Positas new town north of Livermore.

Unless he gets some satisfactory answers, Bort will vote with the other two "no" votes on the board of supervisors and Geldermann will lose his dream of a city of 40,000 persons.

There is, for example, the problem of sewage disposal. Bort is not satisfied with the one proposed — spray irrigation — and he wants Geldermann to name at least one of the other "seven alternatives" to which his attorney, Jack Smith, alluded.

Valley Supervisor Valerie Raymond, who opposes Las Positas, said she does not feel uncomfortable about Bort's request for a delay. "I feel he has raised the issues I had raised (in a letter a few weeks ago to Geldermann). I think that sewage treatment is particularly hard for the developer to come up with the answer to."

Raymond was not satisfied with the answers provided to her questions a few weeks ago. They still were vague, she said. Geldermann has said that more specific answers would come later when the specific plan is drawn.

But Raymond feels that the specific plan later only tells the location of facilities; now, before the general plan amendment is granted, is the time to talk about just what facilities will be available and how they will relate to Las Positas's and neighboring communities and tax districts.

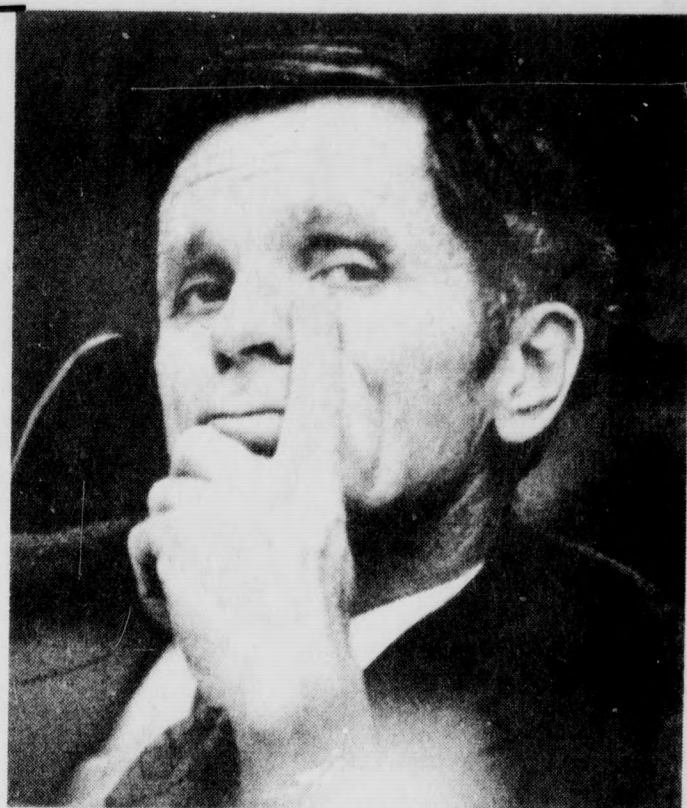

"Jack Smith tells us to give Geldermann a chance to answer these problems after the general plan amendment is granted, but it is obvious right now that the plan is fraught with problems," said Raymond.

The big question to Raymond is whether there are overriding public interest advantages to Las Positas. She doesn't feel there are.

"There is no good evidence that the development could make a significant dent in the need for low and moderate cost housing," she said. "That's why more specific answers are needed to things like how you solve the sewage problem. If that's expensive, then it raises serious questions about whether you can provide low and moderate income housing to any great degree."

Geldermann had only a brief reaction to Bort's statements about how he is ready to vote "no" unless convinced otherwise. "We'll do our best to give him the information," said Geldermann. He said three weeks will be enough time to provide Bort with the information.

Las Positas tops $100 million highway plans

More than $100 million will be spent on several major highway construction projects in the Valley as part of the state's proposed $6.4 billion, six-year spending program announced recently.

The proposed spending package, most of which is expected to win easy approval in October, will cover fiscal years 1978-79 through 1983-84.

The nine Bay Area counties will receive an average of $75 million per year during that six-year period. Of that amount, approximately $46 million is allocated for new road construction; $10.5 million to rehabilitate existing roadways; $10.3 million for operational and safety improvements; $5.1 million for landscaping including noise barriers; and $3.7 million for mass transit funding as required by passage of Prop. 5 in the 1974 state election ballot.

The proposed $6.4 billion spending package will be financed by a similar amount of revenue expected to be received from fuel taxes, federal aid, and minor amounts of miscellaneous income.

New highway construction funds will be used for closing essential gaps in the system and for making substantial progress toward the completion of the interstate system.

Specific projects included in the proposal include:

- * Construction of an auto - pedestrian overcrossing at Interstate 680 near Pleasanton to reconnect West Las Positas (spelled "Los Positos" by the state), which was severed by Interstate 680 10 years ago. The $1.3 million overcrossing would provide easier access to and from the city's west side, and make foot travel to Foothill High School less hazardous for east side residents. Construction is scheduled for 1981-82.

- * Expansion of Interstate 580 from four to six lanes, from Eden Canyon to 167th Avenue in San Leandro. This work, an extension of the nearly completed lane expansion work on Interstate 580 from Dublin Canyon to Eden Canyon, will be scheduled in three stages.

The freeway east of Crow Canyon

Road to east of Strobbridge Avenue will be expanded at a cost of $26.6 million in 1980-81. Expansion east of Eden Canyon to east of Crow Canyon Road will take place in 1981-82 for an estimated $32.8 million. The final link, from Strobbridge Avenue to 167th Avenue, including completion of the interchange with Route 238, is scheduled for 1982-83 at a cost of $34.5 million.

Livermore mayor blasts KPIX for New Town editorial stand

Labor Day traffic

The surge of Labor Day weekend traffic built up gradually to a crescendo Friday afternoon as motorists, many pulling boats and trailers, or hauling bicycles, headed for their holiday retreats. By nightfall Interstate 580 (above near Pleasanton) and Interstate 680 were jammed.

LIVERMORE — The city council should fire off a letter to the Federal Communications Commission criticizing Channel 5's handling of an editorial endorsing Harlan Geldermann's Las Positas new town, Mayor Helen Tirsell told The Times last week.

Channel 5 endorsed New Town in an editorial broadcast last Tuesday at 12:28 p.m. Tirsell told The Times that Livermore was not offered an editorial rebuttal until noon Thursday, two hours before the county supervisors were scheduled to vote on the new town.

And though Tirsell was interviewed by a news person before that editorial appeared, she feels that Channel 5 already made up its mind based on the press releases it got from the Art Blum public relations firm. She added she can't prove that, but it's her suspicion.

In any event, the timing of the editorial and the opportunity for rebuttal left a lot to be desired, said Tirsell. And though the city can't raise any legal action with the FCC against Channel 5, the FCC represents all citizens and she wants to let the FCC know how Citizen Tirsell feels about Channel 5.

Janet Mira, who handles the editorials for Channel 5, said that the station agreed to take the editorial off the air after the first time it ran.

"We felt it was a mistake, a problem of timing," said Mira. "We talked to Gary Reiners (Livermore City Attorney) about it and agreed to take it off the air."

Reiners a week ago last Friday issued a press release to all media concerning the city's fears that a "media blitz" was under way by Geldermann and the Blum agency. After Mira got the press release, she called Reiners. She assumed this past Friday in talking to The Times that there "no longer is any problem."

The supervisors continued the decision on new town for three weeks, but Channel 5 does not plan to run the editorial again.

School alarms OK'd

SR fire system by January

The San Ramon Valley Unified School District has received approval of a $400,000 project that provides for installation of fire detection and alarm systems in all district schools and offices.

Superintendent Allan Petersdorf said Friday the project must now go out to bid and should be completed by the first of January.

San Ramon's application had been in the regional public works office in Seattle the past two months awaiting action. The application in the amount of approximately $400,000 was to the Local Public Works Capital Development and Investment Act of 1976.

The application had been written by Dr. James Smith of the district and submitted by the district after review and approval by the school board. It then went to the county for action before going on to the government's regional public works office. The San Ramon district has had three costly fires in recent years, the last being an arson fire at Neil Armstrong School in San Ramon last October that caused an estimated half-million dollars damage.

Armstrong has now been reconstructed and will be ready for an estimated 600-plus kindergarten through fifth grade students when classes convene Tuesday.

Petersdorf and board members expressed elation at approval of the project.

LLL's role in computer crime fight

LIVERMORE — The modern day Sherlock Holmes will find his sleuthing quite a bit more efficient thanks to a computer and an ingenious method of crime analysis developed by the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory and the San Diego Police Department (SDPD).

The crime analysis program, undergoing a trial run in San Diego this year, helps crime investigators figure out their chances of solving a case before they even start work on it.

In experiments to date, the computer has proved up to 95 per cent accurate in predicting whether or

EBMUD New taste this week

The East Bay Municipal Utility District has begun adding Delta water from Middle River east of Brentwood to supplement its shrinking reservoirs.

EBMUD users, including parts of San Ramon, may notice a difference in the taste of their water as the more chlorinated water from Middle River is blended with the district supply which has historically been low in chlorine.

"It will mean making a few adjustments such as accepting a little stronger chlorine taste and using distilled water for your car battery, not just tap water as our customers are used to doing," said D.G. Larkin, assistant manager and chief engineer.

Larkin also pointed out the addition would mean EBMUD customers would be assured of a regular water supply regardless of drought conditions.

Middle River's salt content is reported to be about 180 parts per million in contrast to EBMUD's customary 10 ppm. The river's dissolved solids content is about 400 ppm where MUD's prior level has been about 100 ppm.

Middle River water began entering the district's San Pablo reservoir Thursday and blending was scheduled to begin at the Walnut Creek filter plant tonight. The river water drench the first customers late tomorrow but could take longer to reach farther down the line in San Ramon.

For the first month Middle River water should not amount to more than 10 per cent of the total supply and is not planned to get over 50 per cent, Larkin said.

Larkin said the new mixture would not mean a significant change in taste nor present a health hazard. Public health standards permit up to 250 ppm and EBMUD should not get that high, he said.

All imported water, he said, would first be checked for chlorine level and once it is established bacteria checks will be performed at the filter plants such as in Walnut Creek. Activated carbon will also be used to eliminate any taste and odor problems and remove organic compounds.

Smooth transfer reported in food stamp distribution

Pleasanton post office employee Paul Mecozzi is ready to distribute food stamps to some of the 700 Valley families who use them.

Food stamp distribution for Valley residents was transferred Thursday from Valley Bank to post offices in Livermore and Pleasanton with ease, postmasters told The Times Friday.

County officials had expressed concern that some local residents might have trouble getting food stamps when Valley Bank discontinued the distribution service Aug. 31. The post office agreed to handle distribution but said it couldn't begin service until mid-September.

When no alternate source could be found, post office representatives scrambled to get the distribution service into effect by Sept. 1. Security at both Livermore and Pleasanton post offices had to be inspected and employees required instruction in doling out the stamps.

But the service was available on time and no problems were encountered at either post office.

Livermore Postmaster Dave Eldridge reported that 51 persons had picked up their food stamps Thursday but added, "We were expecting more."

Eldridge expected patronage to increase when residents became aware of the new service. An estimated 700 Valley families utilize food stamps, with approximately 400 recipients located in Livermore.

Pleasanton Postmaster Mark Foster said the food stamp business was light the first day. Any impact from the new service wouldn't be felt until business reached its normal level, he said.

Mondays are usually the busiest days for the post office, Foster said. Crowding might occur if persons receive their food stamp vouchers during a heavy traffic period such as the first Monday of the month, he indicated.

Food stamps can be picked up between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Monday through Friday from the first to the twenty-sixth day of each month at either the Livermore or Pleasanton.

Attorney Jack Smith, who is a former mayor of Hayward, has an uphill battle as he presses for Alameda County supervisors approval for Harlan Geldermann's New Town plan, a huge residential development proposed for Livermore.

New Town decision on fence

OAKLAND — It looks like attorney Jack Smith is seeking all the divine intervention he can in trying to get approval from Alameda County supervisors for Harlan Geldermann's Las Positas new town proposal north of Livermore.

Smith waved a piece of pink newsprint in front of the supervisors last Thursday as he kicked off his half-hour presentation of Geldermann's case.

"This is the horoscope column from last Sunday's San Francisco Chronicle and Examiner," said Smith. "My horoscope says that Thursday — today — will be my lucky day."

Smith didn't get the victory he wanted, namely, approval for the new town plan. But he was lucky he didn't get a defeat. Supervisor Joseph Bort was set to cast the crucial third vote against the plan, but decided that Smith's presentation raised some unanswered question, so he asked for a continuation. He got one, but it was to Sept. 22 when he will be out of the country.

Although he will be far from Alameda County, he still will be pulling for a victory for his side. He will be visiting Rome then with his family and he said, "On Sept. 22, I hope, I'm visiting the Pope."

Vallecitos celebrates milestone

PLEASANTON — Standing on the site of the first privately funded nuclear power station in the United States, Robert W. Darmitzel, manager of General Electric's Irradiation Processing Operation presented seven G.E. employees with plaques in recognizing their role in developing Vallecitos Atomic Electric Power Plant.

"Twenty years ago Wednesday, Aug. 31, 1957, the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission issued Power Reactor License No. 1 to this nuclear unit located here at Vallecitos," Darmitzel said. "We wanted to recognize each of these men who were intimately involved in this milestone development of commercial nuclear power."

The plaque each man received is a miniature of the bronze dedication marker that hangs on the 5,000 kilowatt plant — small in comparison to today's one-million kilowatt GE boiling water reactors.

The Vallecitos plant was built by the General Electric and Pacific Gas & Electric companies. Electricity from the unit's turbine generator streamed through power lines on Oct. 19, 1957, less than 17 months after the start of major construction. The plant continued generating electricity until Dec. 9, 1963 when it was shut down and deactivated.

The Vallecitos Center, however, continues in the forefront of nuclear research for peaceful purposes. In addition to the continued development of nuclear technology, the facility is one of the world's largest suppliers of radioactive materials to the pharmaceutical industry.

It supplies radioisotopes to some 200 pharmaceutical firms and hospitals in 10 countries. Radioisotopes are invaluable in the diagnosis of human disorders such as breast, bone or brain tumors and liver diseases; in the performance of blood studies; and in the treatment of cancer.

Four run for SR school seat

Four persons, including two from the south portion of the district, will vie for the position open on the San Ramon Valley Unified School District board at a special election November 8.

Don Smith, a salesman for a medical supply firm in San Carlos, and Joan Scott of Danville filed in mid-week. They join Michael Wahlig of San Ramon and Karen Stepper of Danville.

The board vacancy was created with the resignation in July of Ronald Harris, who had been elected along with Donald Sledge and Gregory McCoy last March. Harris resigned after accepting a new executive position with a Dallas, Texas, firm.

The San Ramon school board then decided to call for an election rather than appoint someone.

Two prospective candidates, Harold Zuckerman and Claudia Edwards, decided not to file. Mrs. Edwards, who was the first runnerup in the March elections, told The Times Friday she felt her first obligation was to her family and didn't feel she had time to devote to another campaign.

She had sent a letter to the board asking for consideration as an appointee.

Zuckerman had served on the San Ramon school board for the better part of a decade, most recently as president, before losing out in a reelection bid in the March elections.

He had taken out papers for the November election but did not return them by the Thursday deadline.

Mrs. Scott, of 535 Everett Dr. in Danville, was also an unsuccessful candidate in the March elections. She is a housewife and businesswoman.

Smith, of 3032 Bernard Ave. in San Ramon, has resided in the district the past eight years. He has two daughters, one who will attend California High and one Pine Valley Intermediate School.

He is employed by Central City Medical Supply of San Carlos.

Smith and Wahlig, a leader in two unsuccessful San Ramon incorporation bids, are both residents of San Ramon. Wahlig has also served as president and on the board of the San Ramon Homeowners Association.

Mrs. Stepper is a member of the district's Citizens Committee for Year-Round Schools.

The successful candidate in November 8's election would serve through March of 1979. While the balance of Harris' term runs through March of '81, the district would ballot again in March of '79 on two positions that come due then as well as Harris' successor.

Six schools in the Pleasanton and Murray School Districts will be receiving hot lunch service for the first time in nine years. Getting ready to service Wells, Cronin, Frederksen, Fallon, Neilson and Murray schools are (left to right) Millie Mayhue, Robert Renard, Carol Sawatzky and Nancy Clemens. Renard, food services director, said the 60 cent lunches will be available beginning Tuesday, Sept. 6 in accordance with a new state law requiring all public schools to make hot lunches available to students in kindergarten through high school.

Farm rule

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court has refused to compel farmers to provide names and addresses of their workers to the Agricultural Labor Relations Board.

A petition filed by the board last month asking reversal of rulings by the Riverside Superior Court was denied without comment Wednesday by the high court.

The case was part of the continuing controversy over the board's access rule and related regulations which have stirred debate among the state's growers, agricultural workers and unions.

Unborn ward

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Two lawyers acting for the unborn child of a woman whose religious beliefs prevent her from accepting blood transfusions say they will ask that the fetus be made a ward of the court.

Assistant Public Defenders Robert Willis and Larry Korda said Thursday they requested a hearing today before Broward Circuit Court Judge Stephen Booth.

Green light for Chabot Voc center

Trustees of the South County Community College District will give the green light to proceed with planning for a technical-vocational building at Chabot College Valley Campus at Tuesday's board meeting.

The board convenes in Building 200 of the Chabot Hayward Campus at 7:30 p.m.

Valley Campus faculty members embarked on development of a vocational program in the spring of 1975. Personnel directors of local technical industries were contacted to ascertain the hiring needs of these firms.

Prime reason for the contact was to aid Valley Campus personnel in enlisting occupational programs that would guarantee Valley Campus students real options for employment in the Valley itself.

From these contacts has come active planning for a technical-vocational building, by Leo Meyer and Associates of Hayward.

Trustees are also scheduled to set a meeting date for review of the master plan of the Board of Governors.

Other agenda items include selection of members for a community services advisory committee, a progress report on construction by architects, review of the annual report on community services, and response to the California Community College Trustees regarding board election procedures.

Plan hit

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith termed key provisions in the British-American peace plan for Rhodesia "crazy suggestions" today but did not reject the proposal yet.

"It seems to me that the plan is not only ill conceived, it is rushed," Smith told a news conference. He accused Britain of "seeking revenge" for his declaration of independence in 1965.

Confrontations with fear

What's it like to feel terrified of being outside your home?

It begins with an anxious feeling, an "anxiety attack" that can come while driving on the freeway or in a supermarket.

There's shaking, stomach pains, nausea and dizziness. From there, it develops into fear, deep fear, that gradually takes over a person's mind — and can make them a prisoner in their own home.

The name of the problem is agoraphobia, and some psychiatrists estimate that one out of a hundred people have it fear of being outside the home.

"I tried to control it, but it was very frightening," says Lisa, a 23-year-old Dublin resident who has been working on conquering her problem. "The thought of going out, like to a new school terrified me. I would make excuses to my friends, and just stopped going places," related the attractive young woman with long dark hair. Today, wearing a smart outfit with boots and jeans, she hardly looked like someone who "would only go out of the house once a month, for about a year."

Agoraphobics, who in the past have had no means of treatment — many analysts weren't even familiar with it — are finding help in the Valley now.

Due to studies by Dr. Arthur Hardy of Menlo Park, a group called Terrap was formed to help those who suffer from "fear of the marketplace," as it was known in ancient Greece. Under the direction of Joyce Kaplin, licensed marriage, family and child counselor, Terrap now meets locally — presently in Danville — to give counseling and aid to agoraphobics.

No psychiatrists have ever really pinned down what exactly could be the cause of the fear. According to a book by Dr. is generally Hardy, the agoraphobic an excitable or emotional person, very sensitive to criticism and often inhibited about expressing his or her emotions.

Counselor Joyce Kaplin, who heads the area group called Terrap, works to help ease the overwhelming fears of agoraphobics. She said some psychiatrists estimate that one out of a hundred persons are afflicted with what ancient Greeks called "fear of the marketplace."

When a person's "normal outlets for tension" — such as yelling, getting angry, or getting it off one's chest — is denied, then a condition exists for this kind of phobia to develop, according to Hardy.

The phobia has, in the past, been called "the housewives' disease" — since they are the ones who are more likely to stay at home a lot. Yet, in the local Terrap group, there are writers, student businessmen — all of them terrified at the thought of being very far away from home.

"I had so much fear," says Jeanne, an attractive writer from Walnut Creek, "that I couldn't go from my house to the mailbox, which was 30 feet away."

Agoraphobia, explains Joyce Kaplin, works differently on each person. Some people, she explains, get terrible anxiety attacks just going out their front door. Others can stay comfortably within a two-mile radius — but outside that, they are a wreck. Many, she said, maintain their own businesses. "Then, they can be in their own environment, where they want, when they want, without being afraid."

But for others, agoraphobia develops into a fearful world in which people drop jobs, school, friends, shopping and going out — because they are too fearful.

"I kept it to myself for many months," says Jackie, a student from Walnut Creek. "The initial experience was very scary. I was in a classroom and got this panic feeling. It got worse each time, and little by little, I stopped going to the class."

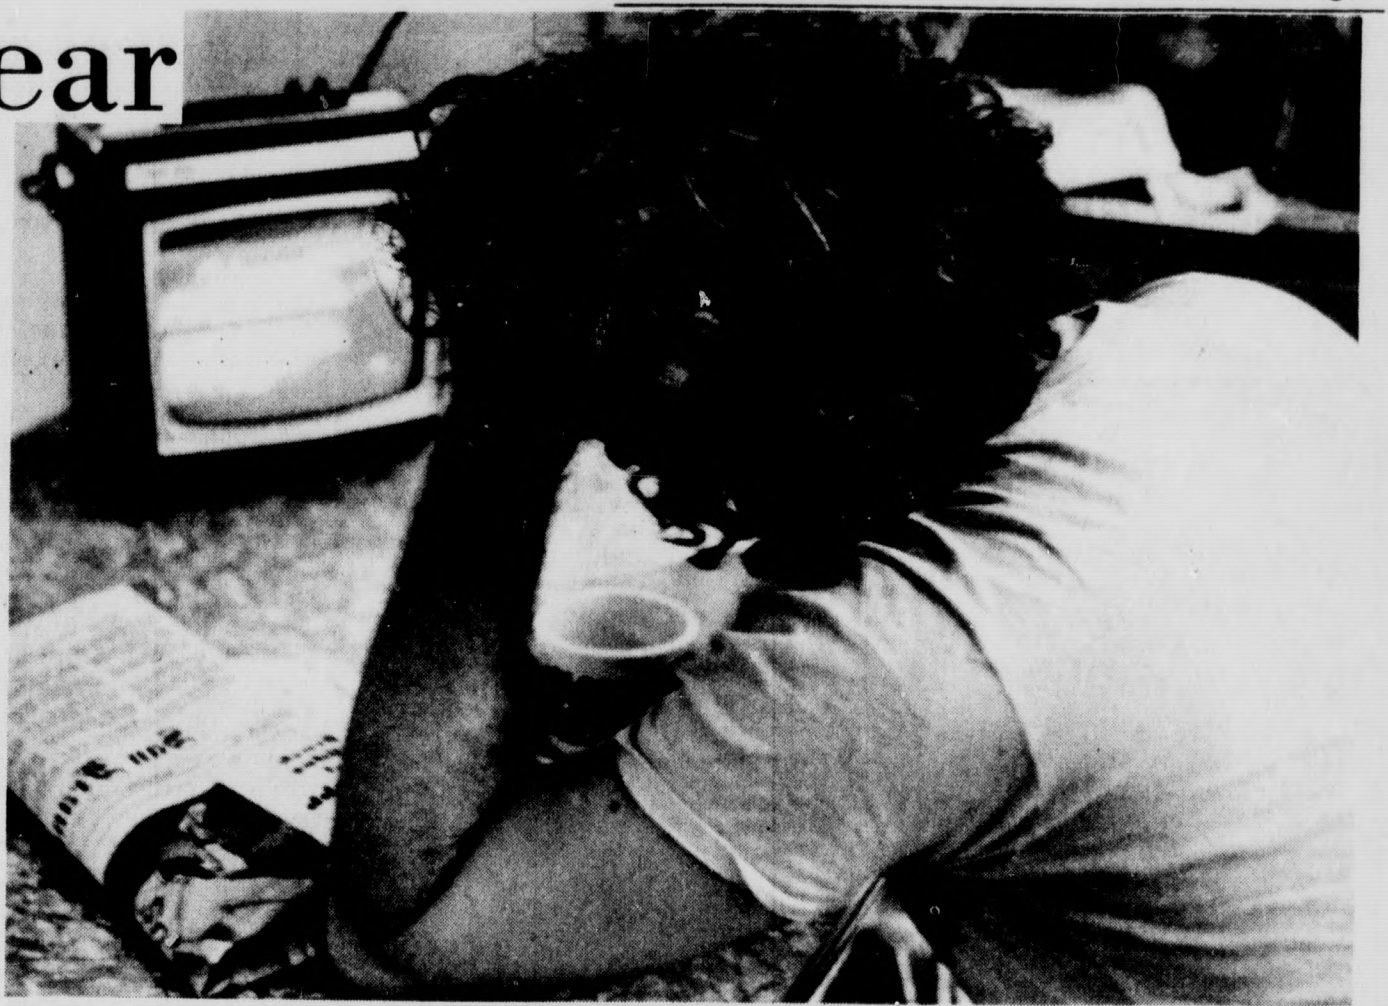

Jackie said she thought she might be "having a nervous breakdown. Stores became a source of panic for me." Finally, she cut back on her activities because of the "panic feeling," until she was "just staying home and doing nothing."

Mary, a Walnut Creek housewife, recalls she was "having attacks while driving around in carpools. I went to an analyst for years, and found out about myself, but didn't find out anything about agoraphobia."

"I would start getting these weird feelings while I was driving," relates Tammy, another young student from Danville. "I'd go home and sleep afterwards, thinking I was tired. I started sleeping more and more, on my couch with a blanket and pillow." Finally, she says, "I didn't talk to anyone. I thought I was going crazy."

"I had one panic attack that lasted a whole weekend," says Jeanne, from Walnut Creek. "I got them in restaurants, everywhere. It made me feel helpless, like a child again, because I was relying on everyone else to go out for me — especially because I'd been so independent before. I hid it until I couldn't function."

Kaplin says that just finding information on the subject is difficult enough. Those who feel they may be agoraphobics, or who may have one in a family member or friend, can call Kaplin, and Terrap, at 376-5530 for information about the group. House calls can be made, if necessary, and information about meetings, which are scheduled at the Discovery House in Danville on Saturday mornings and Monday nights, will also be sent.

There's only one place for the agoraphobic, and that is home. Because of unexplained and overwhelming fears, those afflicted with the phobia often spend weeks, months and in some cases years within the confines of their houses. Now, an area group helps them out, through therapy, counseling and regular meetings.

ings with spouses or friends, and that's perfectly all right.

The idea, adds Jeanne, is "step by step" recovery. "The other day, we took a field trip on BART from Concord to Walnut Creek. My husband heard that and said, 'Hey, why don't you visit me and come to lunch?' I said, 'Let's take one thing at a time.'"

And that, it seems, is the secret. "I'm going to summer school," says Jackie, "just to sort of prepare myself for school in fall again."

And Mary says, "I'm still trying to handle going into stores." "I went to work for a while," Lisa says, "and it wasn't so bad."

And in the eyes of the agoraphobia, that is progress.

Literacy lauded

LIVERMORE — Since 1966, September 8 has been celebrated as World Literacy Day. Livermore Life Center is actively involved in teaching non-English speaking adults to read and write English, and offering individual help in a variety of learning activities.

The Center offers an opportunity for those interested in reducing illiteracy to become familiar with the one-to-one techniques employed by literacy teachers using the Laubach method.

The literacy center is non-denominational and is headed by Maria Hopkins. There is no tuition, and the local volunteers who teach transport and help maintain the group have in the past year established a Student Scholarship Fund to help needy students.

Students are taught to fill out applications and to apply for citizenship. Social and fellowship opportunities are provided for students, as well.

Those interested in participating in the Life Center program as teachers, organization representatives, church coordinators, board members, special committees, or those who wish to work on fund raisers, are invited to call Mrs. Hopkins at 443-0191.

Bort's ballot

Supervisor Joseph Bort marked his own entry into "the debate over Geldermann's New Town" by observing that he "was inclined to vote no" on that controversial project.

After detailed information was provided by all sides, most particularly from the developer, Bort raised "serious doubts" about such items as sewer, water and schools for that new community.

And now, after adding those new doubts to his initial inclination to reject the project, Supervisor Bort advises the world that "I need more time to digest new facts before put forth by the developer's attorney before I can cast my vote."

We cannot imagine what "new facts" are forthcoming that would turn around the weight of evidence already presented, including Mr. Bort's own concerns. We must therefore hope that it is not some other kind of influence which is delaying what must by now be clear to everyone, even including all five members of that county board: Geldermann's New Town venture is not timely, it is not needed, and it must be shelved at least until the existing communities within this basin can get their economic and environmental acts together.

Supervisor Bort should not need much more time to figure that out.

Losing a war

On Thursday of this week, state planning officials will ask "Oakland and East Bay citizens what they think of proposed statewide policies for the future development of California cities and suburbs."

You can bet that Oakland will have considerable input into that session. You might hope suburbia has a small voice, too.

The spotlight these days is on "the inner city." That is where "the great social challenge of our times" hangs out; and that is where "enlightened political leaders" are most apt to congregate, at least during their working political hours.

Weekends, the politicians come home to the suburbs like the rest of us. And here they fall apart, free of the problems and the pragmatics of The Inner City ... at least until somebody holds another problem-solving session, or another election.

So why should suburbanites bother to participate in an Oakland planning session on Urban California? Might as well ask yourself why a public hearing in Oakland, controlled by four representatives from that metropolitan core, is making the final decision on a massive housing development close by Livermore.

Harlan Geldermann knew that his chances for "New Town" would be decided on such "sociological terms" as "segregation and the clustering of homogeneous units." The message was clear: Suburban enclaves like Livermore want nothing more than to protect what they already have. And that dream flies in the face of "the realities of Inner City America."

It's going to be a struggle, and the urban people know it. They are fighting for more tax dollars, new leadership, fresh ideas. Suburbanites are kept busy fighting among themselves, challenging the local leaders, rehashing old decisions.

And while we engage in these neighborhood battles, Urban California is winning the war.

Philcox on unity

Editor, The Times:

The decision making process for elected officials is the same as it is for anyone else — add up the benefits and the detriments resulting from your decision and make a choice. The choice will always be for the alternative that provides the most benefits in the decision makers opinion. So it, must be with the LAVWMA Zone 7 marriage, if there is to be one.

It was inevitable that someday the cities (I include Dublin) and the Zone would reach a point where they would be overlapping. The cities represent their individual citizenry and the Zone represents all the citizens of the valley. The cities use the water the Zone supplies and benefits from the flood control project the Zone undertakes. The further processing of waste water (treatment and disposal) has always been a city responsibility carried out under the watchful eye of the Regional Water Quality Control Board. As the Zone assumes responsibility for the tremendous water resources below this valleys floor, the agencies begin to feel their shoulders rub and suddenly meetings get crowded and there we are — nose to nose.

Now a decision must be made — should the cities, thru LAVWMA, join with the Zone and undertake a water reclamation plan, or should they go it alone and only allow the Zone the opportunity for input through a Policy Advisory Committee, withholding the Zones participation in any of the decision leading to the completion of the study. Benefits vs. Detriments. Who wins, who loses, what do they win or lose? Everyones opinions will differ to some degree.

I have to ask myself what harm will come from this merger. What is the worse thing that can happen and is it worth it. I also must admit I cannot think of anything so terrible as to preclude the joint study.

The small problems of organization, responsibility and representation can be worked out if we want to work them out.

The benefits come to all of us who live here, for regardless of whether the study shows that the cities must undertake facilities construction or whether the Zone must do so, matters little. We are all in this together and the best project is what is important.

Of all the agencies on the Policy Advisory Committee required to participate in this study, only the Cities and the Zone have the authority, responsibility and ability to implement a water reclamation program in our valley. To exclude the Zone in the decision making process leading to a plan for water reclamation would be a gross error.

I do not believe that anyone can ask another to undertake, a project and spend many dollars unless there has been mutual agreement on what they project should be. Only by going through the decision making process together can we arrive at a plan that will be acceptable to both the cities and the Zone and have their joint support.

If we don't get together now, we will be forced to later one. It's inevitable. We have to join together and form an alliance for the ultimate benefit of the entire valley. Lets begin — we're long overdue.

Mayor
City of Pleasanton

The week in retrospect

Labor's excesses

Is the labor goliath about to turn on its master?

There have been increasing signs over the past decade that organized labor, most specifically the union movement, is about to swallow its masters and all those it supposedly serves.

We have now advanced (or regressed, depending on your perspective) to the point where union leadership can pretty well "call" the outcome of local and national elections — if they so wish.

And from the judicial angle, attempts to police union actions via the injunction have become virtually a waste of time.

It would seem, from the actions of SOME unions, that they are above the law — or consider themselves THE law and the way.

But there is also evidence now that some segments of the population are becoming increasingly disturbed by the actions of some unions — such as that firefighters union in Dayton, Ohio that refused to fight structural fires because they were striking for a better contract.

This brings forth the question of whether or not there are certain services (such as police, fire, hospital and, possibly, schools — the so-called essential services) that should not be endangered by strikes or work slowdowns.

It is a question that has yet to be universally addressed — though such actions as those in Dayton may force the issue.

The time may be drawing near when taxpayers unsympathetic to wildcat strikes, walkouts, sickouts and obstructive protest marches will demand sanctions on the out-of-control labor union steamroller.

There is growing reason to believe that even within the unions there is a critical division of opinion between leadership and the rank and file on procedural matters.

In recent days we have witnessed walk-outs and sickouts involving Bay Area Rapid Transit security personnel and employees at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

Setting aside the question of justification, what level of participation was there in the BART and LLL employee actions?

And what was the net impact on the general public and clientele of these two institutions?

Well, in the case of BART, supervisory personnel took over and supposedly accomplished more with a vastly smaller work force than the regular company of workers.

If this be true, does it tell you something?

It would be my fervent hope, then, that when Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., comes to the Pleasanton Fairgrounds tomorrow for the annual Central Labor Council bash, that he be willing to address some of these "touchy" points.

True, it might tend to take the glow off an "I'm okay, you're okay" afternoon. Nobody likes to hear contrary words on "their" day, but the truth never hurt anyone.

Unless it's an outfit that plays by its own set of rules.

Rule 1 is more-is-best, except if it involves work hours or restrictions.

Rule 2 is all management is basically oppressive, self-perpetuating, devious, and spawned from white colonial imperialist ancestry.

Rule 3 says never admit to being anything less than infallible.

And there is where the problem rests.

For if Brown, Fortney Stark, all their Democratic friends and organized labor leadership took stock, they'd realize that the union movement is paralyzing itself through its own excesses.

Logic of ERA

It is as difficult to argue in favor of the Equal Rights Amendment as it is to argue in favor of pastured milk. Both seem so obviously reasonable and necessary that it rather stifles logical debate.

It is only when persons create ridiculous arguments against the ERA that one feels compelled to respond.

A recent opinion in this paper suggested the ERA would mean the ruination of the family. So might pastured milk.

I mean, it could mean the end of the family cow. Mothers would be forced to venture out into supermarkets leaving the children at home alone, or heaven forbid, with a non-family member to watch them.

Perform a death-defying act.

Stop smoking.

Give Heart Fund
American Heart Association

OK, I admit this sounds silly — it's supposed to. It is the same kind of creative, prejudicial thinking that the ERA has been subjected to. It is the kind of thinking that links the amendment to the end of the American family.

A common statement by anti-ERA persons is that the passage of the amendment will force pregnant women onto the battlefield. If healthy men with flat feet aren't drafted, I suggest pregnant women will not be seen firing bazookas.

Another common and often practiced ploy is to link the ERA supporters to "left-wing, homosexual and lesbian organizations." What kind of a useful argument is that? For one thing, it is not true. For another, it is on the same level as calling someone a "Communist" to avoid the issue and play on emotional reaction.

The simple wording of the ERA, that it will be unlawful to deny equality of rights to persons because of their sex, is no more flawed than the First Amendment — "Congress shall make no laws ... abridging the freedom of speech."

We've learned that freedom of speech does not pave the way for irresponsible and dangerous actions. You may not yell "Fire!" in a crowded theatre. With the passage of the equal rights amendment the state will not be able to take over the rearing of children. Nor will it allow other dangerous or irresponsible activity.

The citizens of this country should have the right to decide for or against the ERA, but the decision should be made using logic and good sense not unfounded conclusions and prejudicial thinking.

FOUND the town

"Should we eat out tonight?"

It is America's 64 million dollar question. McDonald's built a golden arch of hamburgers clear across the American stomach.

"We haven't eaten out in ages," says the lady of the house. She is tired of the cook - and - wash routine. More likely, she is tired of herself, me, the dog. Women get that way, now and then. The "I wish I were anything but a housewife" syndrome. Ann Landers always suggests marital counseling.

McDonald's suggests a night under the arch. Burger, fries, milk shake. The calorie catastrophe.

"What's this new slim - trim spot opening up in town?" I ask. Observe here the clever way I get off the subject of dining out, while keeping the question of food ever before us.

"They don't call them slim - trim anymore," she replies. "They are really more into the keep - fit thing these days. I stopped by that new place this morning, matter of fact. They seem quite nice."

She "stops by" all these places, as I have learned. Every woman does. Curiosity, mostly. Anxious to see what scientific wonders are being cooked up for the female form. Can't stand to see the housewife - next - door get a leg up, so to speak.

"My problem isn't being overweight, so much as it is having the pounds in the wrong places." She had a long talk with the Keep Fit lady. The gal is no fool. Never tell the customer she's on the hefty side. "Just a few pounds in the wrong places, that's all dearie." Sign 'em up, start the course.

It is among the nation's fastest growing businesses. Right up there with cosmetic surgery, and McDonald's hamburgers. Millions to take it off, millions more to put it back on. This is one war America can't possibly win.

Ann Landers says working on the body beautiful is one way a woman has of "shedding her innermost frustrations." In the old days she simply went out and bought a new hat. Covered a multitude of frustrations. Double chins, too.

American womanhood goes hatless, these days. The face is naked to the world. Younger they are, more they like to expose. Add a few years, a few pounds, and they are less apt to expose the flesh. But the desire is always there.

"They have a great set up," she announces. Still hung up on that shop where they take it off, move it around, or whatever. "A lot of nice equipment, some really handsome drapes. Background music and that sort of thing."

In convincing American Woman to stay fit, one must first get A.W. in the mood. Set the scene. Or the trap.

"The girl thought if I came in every morning for a half hour, for a few weeks or so, it would do wonders for me."

It would also do wonders for the family budget. Knock it all to hell. A month of that and we would stop worrying about calorie - heavy food. Or any other kind.

In a situation like this, American Husband is hard pressed to fight his way out of the corner. Where is Ann Landers when I need her most?

"Some of the girls spend hundreds of dollars just getting their hair done," she says. Has me on the ropes. Refuses to let up. Moving in for the kill. "I would think you would be pleased that I want to look nice. After all, it's all just for you."

The KO punch. Since time immemorial. The one jab no husband has ever survived. But they have tried...

Knowledge may give weight, but accomplishments give luster, and many more people see that weigh.

Philip Dormer Stanhope was an authority on matters of weight, and women. It was also he who wrote, "Take care of the pence, for the pounds will take care of themselves."

It is both pence and pounds that concern me right now. I am trapped between slices of heavy bread, no matter which way I turn. Spend a king's ransom to keep her fit? Or drop a quick bundle on some fancy dinery? I turn, instead, to the wisdom of words.

"Frankly, I always thought you had a terrific figure," I advise female partner, adding a light squeeze. And then, after a few more squeezes, "What say we have a dry martini and then a quick marital break before going out for dinner?"

"We don't really have to go out tonight," she replies, warmly. "I can always throw something together... later."

With any luck we will also throw out that idea of Keeping Fit over a 52 - week contract. The wisdom of man has won once again prevailed over the female foible.

Whatever is worth doing at all, is worth doing well.

Thanks, Philip Stanhope, I needed that.

The Tree

Armistead Maupin ("Tales of the City") and Charles Dickens ("A Tale of Two Cities") got their starts in fiction by writing serialized novels for newspapers. In this tradition, I thought I would share with you a story I wrote recently in a writing workshop sponsored by the Livermore Area Recreation and Park Department. The story was inspired by my examination of an Audubon Society picture of a "quaking aspen" tree.

I spent a summer once in Yosemite. My agent got me a job as a quaking aspen. I had to audition against a retired vaudevillian who was bored with living in Los Angeles and a Campfire Girl who needed five more points for a merit badge.

Now, you might think it was tough for me to transform myself into a tree. Not at all. I had a couple of things going for me. One was the fact I am extremely lazy. My father used to tell me that if I lay around the house much longer, I'd take root. So I had those memories of my father going for me. As a method actor, I found it easy to get into those feelings.

My coach was helpful. I decided early in my acting career that I needed a drama coach. But I was not satisfied with the types I met around the Workers' Actshop, so when I was on the Los Angeles Skid Row one day, I found my acting coach.

He didn't look like a hobo at all. There was no vacant look in the face, no toothless gums. No, this man was trim, like an over age prizefighter who never took a drink. His name was Don Juan. He used to live with an Indian tribe in central Mexico.

I found Don Juan very useful. He not only showed me body relaxation exercises for my acting on stage, he also demonstrated how to cook a can of beans without using Sterno. He set the can of beans on a little tripod that he carried with him. He repeated an invocation three times in his native tongue and the energy derived from the words plus several body tricks performed at the same time combined to make a parapsychological act that moved the air molecules enough to cook the beans. It took 15 minutes. I have found that particular teaching of Don Juan one of the most valuable as I lived on Skid Rows across America.

With Don Juan's sorcerer's tricks, I took root at the 8,000 foot level in Yosemite near my favorite lake, Lake Tenaya. Gradually my skin turned into white bark. I felt a surge of energy as the sap began rising in my trunk. I felt joy as my tap roots began to pick up minerals and my soul realized that at last I was one with nature.

One thing I learned about being a tree was that I got very scared when I saw anyone coming around with an axe. I never suffered the indignity of the blade, but one of my buddies got it. Harmon was his name. Whammo. You probably thought that all trees in Yosemite were protected. Theoretically, they are. But now and then some big city guy comes along who wants to impress his girl friend. He still has his hatchet from Boy Scouts; he has carried it in a succession of cars over the past 15 years. One day, far off the beaten path, around sunset when it's hard for rangers to spot him, he gets to be a hero by making a start on his own log cabin in the wilderness.

Otherwise, it was nice up there at 8,000 feet. The sun felt good on my leaves. It took my mind off pencils, furniture and house siding for awhile. And the rain! You know that beautiful pattering sound when rain touches leaves? Well, it feels even better than it sounds.

Ah, this is all nostalgia. Never mind how I got back to my real persona. Don Juan helped a lot. He got me out by the first big snowfall. Next time you are in Yosemite, look at the quaking aspens and try to understand why they are quaking.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm taking care of my two teenaged nieces while their parents are away. I don't think I'm old-fashioned, I'm aware of a sexual revolution, but I'm really shocked to see how sexually careless and promiscuous these girls are. I know they use the pill so I don't worry about pregnancy, but I find their behavior somewhat offensive and terribly destructive. I don't know if their parents are aware of this or not, but as an aunt, I'm worried and concerned. What makes them promiscuous? — P.V.

DEAR P.V.: There are a number of things that can lead to sexual promiscuity in teenagers and one of them is a feeling that they're not loved by their parents. Some youngsters try to get the reassurance from others that they really want from their parents. Sometimes, it's an effort to break away from an exaggerated attachment to a parent, or to prove to the parent that they're no longer children.

Despite the sexual revolution, promiscuity in a teenager is a cry for help and a sign of deep emotional disturbance. It is usually the result of a disturbed home, and it can be one way of expressing rebellion against parents. The teenager who engages in this kind of sexual merry-go-round is usually unhappy and gets little pleasure from his activities. Random sex is often used by adults and teenagers as an attempt to escape from some disturbance and pain that the person is unable to face.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My son is worried because his 2-year-old daughter likes to run around without clothes. He and his wife are very strict and religious and they feel this is wrong. I think they're being absurd but they punish the child as if she were aware that it's morally wrong to be nude.
What's even more absurd is that he's afraid she'll grow up to be a prostitute or an exhibitionist. What do you think of this? This new religion my son and his wife have is not shared by me. They are swinging away from their own sexual promiscuity. I don't believe their attitudes have anything to do with religion. — S.P.

DEAR S.P.: I agree. Your son's attitudes about his child have nothing to do with religion, but rather reflect his own guilt and inhibitions about sex.
Apparently, he and his wife have gone from one extreme to another and have used religion as a kind of refuge in a world where the old codes of behavior have weakened.

Unfortunately, they may make their child feel guilty and ashamed because of their own confusion and guilt about sex.
It's quite normal for a child to take delight in, and be curious about her body.

Your son's reaction can only produce anxiety in the child and this will surface in her adolescence and cause emotional and psychological problems.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My boy developed hay fever about three years ago. He is only 6.
We prefer not to give him medicines such as antihistamines.

We are planning on moving to the southern part of Arizona or California. We now reside in northern Indiana. We worry that this allergy might lead to another one such as asthma. At first we thought of moving to northern Michigan, but the doctor said he might have another allergy there.
Somebody told me it was good to move to Arizona. Is this true?

It would be very helpful if we could have your opinion about moving to another part of the United States.

DEAR READER — One of the best treatments for any allergy, including hay fever (allergic rhinitis) is to avoid the offending agent. If it is ragweed you can avoid it by going to the Pacific Northwest. There is no ragweed there. In general, the Pacific area is less likely to cause this problem.

If it happens to be trees, grass or animal dander from the family pet, moving is not going to do that much good.
So, look before you leap. See an allergist and find out what your son is allergic to. If it is something common to your household you can eliminate
it. Don't move unless you know what the offending agent is and that it is indeed absent from the area you plan to move to.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a male, 72 years old. Recently I was told that my cholesterol was normal but my triglycerides were elevated. I was told to eat less carbohydrates. I eat no candy and add no sugar but drink two beers a day. I eat mainly chicken, turkey, fish and sea foods.

I am slender and eat very small meals. I drink only non-fat milk, eat no cheese and do not eat egg yolks. I drink no coffee and do not smoke. I eat French enriched sourdough bread. I add no salt, pepper or spices to my food.

Please advise changes I should make.

DEAR READER — I just wished everyone followed an equally sound approach to diet (except for the beer). Just keep on doing as you are.

Triglycerides are fats and their correlation with vascular disease that leads to heart attacks and strokes is not as well founded as the level of your cholesterol or the measurements of the size of the fatty-cholesterol particles.

The triglyceride level can be affected by your level of physical activity. I am not advising that you become a marathon runner but individuals who are capable of fairly vigorous exercise and do it at least every other day will often lower their triglyceride (blood fat) level.

In your case you might wish to start a daily routine of walking if you do not do so already.

WHITE HOUSE
GET ITS NAME?"
A. THE PRESIDENT'S HOME WAS OFFICIALLY NAMED
THE "WHITE HOUSE" IN 1902. ITS NAME COMES FROM ITS SANDSTONE WALLS, WHICH ARE PAINTED WHITE.

In 1814, the President's House was badly damaged by fire. It was rebuilt and the gray walls were painted white to cover
the scars and smoke stains.
The building has been white ever since.

The President's home was officially named the White House became president in 1902.

astrograph

Sept. 4, 1977

The coming year should be a fortunate one for you and you should enjoy a rise in status and social position. This will be due not only to what you are, but who you know.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is a good day for you to be around those who can give your career a boost. You'll say and do all the right things and make a very favorable impression. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-
Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Use the indirect approach today. In the long run you will find it far more successful than a frontal attack.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are generally lucky today in all your involvements. You may even incur some residual benefits that will pay off later!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Things done on your own will yield only limited returns today.
You stand to make your big score in a concerted team effort.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Although this is not a business day, if you have a good idea try to get the ear of your superior

while it's fresh in your mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may get a brainstorm today
that's a little out of your line. It could be a gold mine if you get it to the people who know how to market it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're lucky today, but not in the way you expect. Something will be resolved in a manner
different than you thought it would.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a touch for making fun out of everything today, even work.
Whatever you lay your hands on turns out well and you'll enjoy it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Returns could come your way today in areas that you've given considerable thought to. Look for gains here, rather than in out-landish schemes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A person fond of you may give you a tip today that could make or save you money. Listen carefully. It'll be extremely worthwhile.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Sources
you expect the least from are apt to do the most for you today. You could even receive a gift from a secret admirer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If at all possible today, arrange to mingle with your most affluent contacts. Something very substantial may rub off on you.

Cops know in advance if they'll solve case

not a case can be solved. Programmed by LLL, the computer analyzes subtle patterns in "clues" gathered at the scene of the crime. If the computer predicts a high probability that the investigator can find out "whodunit," the police officer will pursue the case. If not, the investigator will spend his time on another assignment.

The result will be a more effective use of police manpower. That's important for San Diego's investigators who, like their colleagues across the nation, are assigned an overwhelming 30 new cases each day. With a little help from the computer, the investigators will know which cases to tackle first. Historically, that decision has been based on the intuition of individual police investigators, according to San Diego's deputy chief of police, Donald Reiersen. "Every investigator had his own criteria, based on his experience," Reiersen said, "and there was no way to evaluate the department's overall success rate. With the computer setting standard criteria to tell us whether or not to pursue a case, we'll be able to evaluate its performance and make adjustments. The system should result in more effective use of police officers and a higher rate in solving crime."

The system is now being tested in the field by police using information generated by hand-held calculators, programmed for crime analysis. If the system continues to work successfully, the information will be programmed into SDPD's larger computer system next summer for permanent use.

That computer system called "ARJIS" — for Automated Regional Justice Information System — is being developed with a $2.5 million grant from the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Under the terms of that grant, SDPD was obligated to come up with a system for crime analysis by computer. SDPD turned to the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory for help because of Lab expertise in the exotic technique of "pattern recognition."

This involves making computers artificially "intelligent" by teaching them to recognize patterns in seemingly unrelated information and drawing conclusions from data that might be overwhelming and meaningless to human observers.

LLL has pioneered pattern recognition's application in fields ranging from predicting the therapeutic value of anti-cancer drugs to analyzing chromosomes in studies of genetic disease.

Principal investigators Charlie Bender and Terry Cox, physicists at LLL, set out to apply pattern recognition techniques to the solution of crimes in San Diego. The study was sponsored by LLL's Technology Applications Group.

To start their study, the LLL researchers examined 100 San Diego crimes; 20 each of robbery, assault, burglary, rape, and grand theft.

Researchers tested the computer program with a limited number of clues — the hour, season and location of the crime, for example. The program proved to be 65 per cent accurate in a blind prediction of whether these 100 crimes had been solved.

The researchers then fed the computer much more information about 700 crimes. That information included the kind of residence or business where the crime was committed, burglary tools used, cash value of stolen property, data on witnesses, suspects and get-away vehicle.

This time, the computer was able to develop more meaningful patterns of information and predict with 70 to 95 per cent accuracy whether the crime had been solved.

This year, law enforcement investigators are testing the crime analysis program using programmable calculators. Next year they will be armed with scores generated by the ARJIS computer indicating probability of solution to help them decide whether each crime is worth pursuing. While the SDPD will eventually use ARJIS to score each crime, police officials say departments without large computers can use programmable calculators just as successfully.

Planned for future use by the SDPD is a computer program, also written by LLL's Cox and Bender, that will predict time and locations of crime sprees and seasonal variations in crime types. The computer can chart crime patterns on a color map of the city, for easy, accurate analysis by police management. Police officials believe that once these crimes can be predicted and mapped they can also be prevented by assigning extra police protection in strategic areas.

Raymond supports offender

OAKLAND — The new acting director of the Alameda County Housing Authority was convicted once for misuse of public funds, but has been fully rehabilitated and ought to remain in his new position, Supervisor Charles Santana said last week.

Valley supervisor Valerie Raymond agrees with Santana's basic position in the matter.

Santana issued a statement last week in response to a story in the Oakland Tribune which revealed that Harry Zollinger, the new interim director of the housing authority, had been convicted of making a loan to a friend and taking money for personal use from the Sacramento Housing Authority where he was executive director.

Santana said that as chairman of the board of supervisors and a member of the governing board of ACAP/ACTEB, the anti-poverty agency where Zollinger worked for the past two years, he was aware of Zollinger's record and impressed with his personal rehabilitation.

"I think it's a shame if a man's past mistakes cannot be forgiven when he's since proven himself to be professionally capable and trustworthy," said Santana.

Noting that the housing authority's finances are protected by centralized controls at the Social Services Agency which administers the housing authority, Santana said he "believes in Harry and his ability to perform."

"I think it's time our society should put to rest what a man has done and focus on the skill and knowledge he can bring to the job," said Santana.

Raymond said that the supervisors have supported the ex-offender program run by the Sheriff's department which tries to launch rehabilitated prisoners into private industry. It's consistent with that notion to hire rehabilitated offenders into county jobs, said Raymond.

Unlike the Pleasanton and Livermore housing authorities where the commissioners hire an executive director, the county housing authority is under the wing of the county's Social Services Agency and the decision to hire Zollinger as interim director was made by SSA staff head Liberdad Perez.

Of nuclear plants and other things

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON — Officialdom comes up with reminders almost every day that make a body wonder whether we're living, not in these here United States, but in Nigeria.

There was, for example, President Carter's energy boss sitting before the Senate Energy Committee and noting that it takes an average of eight years to license and construct a nuclear power plant, and another four years to persuade the Nuclear Regulatory Commission that the finished plant doesn't violate any rules.

James R. Schlesinger and Carter, bless them, think that is too long. So Carter will send legislation to Congress next month that would cut this 12-year process in half. Carter, according to an aide, "wonders why America can't be as smart as Japan and most industrialized European countries," which require only about five years to get nuclear plants into production.

"It's not a question of safety," said the Carter man. "Officials in other countries simply work faster. Over here, there's too much shuffling of papers and meaningless conferences. We're deluged with memos about trivia."

Other Carter people, notably Schlesinger, claim his proposal to reduce licensing time would not ease present environmental, health and safety requirements for nuclear plants. Instead, the administration would study standardized designs and seek what is called "early site review."

Humble, tolerant, kind

A composite profile of new teachers in the Amador and Pleasanton school districts would find him/her to be about 30 years of age, married, three to five years teaching experience, and graduate of a Northern California college or university.

Each district has 16 new teachers and building-level administrators.

The new staff members were feted at the annual "new teachers luncheon" at Dublin High's cafeteria Friday.

Superintendent Bruce Newlin, in brief, prepared remarks at the end of the luncheon, challenged the new staff members to "be humble, tolerant, and kind."

Also present were members of the central district office staff, school principals, Robert Coney of the County Schools office, Chan Henderson of the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce, Dr. Todd Lee of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, and representatives of the news media.

Among the new staff members are:

Douglas Balaban, assigned to music and social studies at Amador, graduate of Cal State Hayward.

William R. Berry, math at Foothill High, previously taught at Harvest Park School.

Thomas F. Davis, vice principal at Dublin High, previously teacher and athletic director in Livermore Unified School District.

So-Oh
what?

On Sports

Is Kojiro Suzuki the Al Downing of Japan?
Is the Yakult Swallow pitcher destined to take his place with Tom Zachary, Tracy Stallard and Downing as one of baseball's guys-who-threw-the-pitch-when...?

Or will he, too, become a victim of the ridiculous arguments that seek to cheapen Sadaharu Oh's world home run record.

Oh, for those who have been able to elude the printed word, television and radio for the duration of the baseball season, is the Japanese slugger who clouted his 756th career home run last night in Tokyo.

Sadaharu Oh

Suzuki threw the pitch. Zachary threw the pitch that George Herman Ruth swatted for his 60th home run of 1927. Stallard followed 34 years later with a fat one that Roger Maris used to break Ruth's record with 61 in 1961. And Downing, closer to today's topic, yielded Hank Aaron's 715th homer, the one that erased Ruth's "unbeatable" career total of 714.

Now that Oh has beaten Aaron's brouhaha final mark of 755, the that has been brewing since it became apparent that the Chinese-Korean immigrant was going to send Japanese fans into ecstasy with a higher total will boil over.

That ain't no record, Americans scoff. He hit them in miniature parks off pitchers who won't brush a batter back. And remember, Aaron beat him by the whopping total of 10-9 in a home run contest three years ago.

The answer to that has to be; so what? Who cares if the Yomiuri Giants, Oh's club, are the Oriental equivalent of the Los Angeles Lakers or New York Cosmos, reaping in all the best players and the favor of game officials?

Take into account that the Japanese ball is softer. And the fact that pre- and post-season tours of Japan by American teams Oh would have been good for 500 in the United States.

Records are never fair. Remember Ivory Crockett? He still shares the 100-yard dash record, as does Houston McTear. What have they done lately?

In baseball, though, no mark can fall without controversy. When Maris broke Ruth's season home run mark, then commissioner Ford Frick shamelessly slapped an asterisk next to Maris' line in the record book, since he took eight more games to surpass the standard.

Aaron, it is said, had to courageously battle racial hatred to knock down Ruth's mark. Well, Oh battled racial prejudice just to get a uniform in Japan. As an immigrant of foreign lineage, he cannot vote. And as American George Altman discovered, the Japanese prefer home grown stars.

Not surprisingly, no sooner had Lou Brock swiped his 893rd base to beat Ty Cobb's long-standing theft record last week, than a man wrote to a San Francisco newspaper claiming that Billy Hamilton, a 19th century thief who stole more than 900 bases under archaic rules was the true Sultan of Swipe.

And so it goes.

The day will no doubt come that Pablo Torrealba will finish 87 games in relief for the New Orleans A's and a cry will go up that it was a cheap record since the A's were such a lousy team that they had no complete games, giving Torrealba more chances than Mike Marshall had with the Dodgers.

Oh my.

Giants edge St. Louis in 14

SAN FRANCISCO — Tim Foli, in an unfamiliar role as a pinch hitter, belted a single down the left field line in the 14th inning to give the San Francisco Giants a thrilling 6-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals before 5,606 customers here yesterday.

Foli, who had injured his thumb slightly Friday night while diving for a ground ball, hit a low inside pitch to bring home Darrell Evans with the winning run.

Evans opened the 14th with a walk off former Giant hurler Pete Falcone. Jack Clark struck out and Gary Thomasson followed suit but Evans stole second as Cardinal catcher Ted Simmons did not throw the ball, thinking there were three outs.

Catcher Marc Hill was walked intentionally before Foli came to bat for shortstop Johnny LaMaster.

Dave Heaverlo, the fifth Giant pitcher, received the victory after working the top of the 14th. He is now 4-1 for the season.

Giant third baseman Bill Madlock sent the game into extra innings with a lead-off home run in the bottom of the ninth, his second four-bagger of the day.

Madlock, who is moving his average toward the .310 mark, also had a single in the 11th inning with two outs. Evans walked but Clark popped out to first to end the threat.

St. Louis had taken the lead for the first time in the contest in the eighth inning on San Francisco native Keith Hernandez's grand-slam home run with two outs.

After Ken Reitz opened the eighth for St. Louis with a fly out to right field Giant starter Ed Halicki walked a man but got Doug Radar to ground out.

However, Mike Tyson lined a single and Giant manager Joe Altobelli relieved Halicki in favor of ace bullpen star Gary Lavelle.

But Garry Templeton greeted Lavelle with an infield single as Tyson ducked under the tag of LaMaster at second base. Hernandez then blasted his grand-slam over the center field fence. Lavelle got Simmons to strike out to end the inning but things looked bad for Giant fans until Madlock's ninth inning homer.

The game started out as it were going to be a pitcher's duel between Halicki and St. Louis starter Bob Forsch.

Forsch held the Giants hitless for three innings while Halicki pitched steady ball until his removal.

The bottom of the fourth brought disaster for Forsch as Madlock and Evans hit back-to-back home runs. Forsch was forced to leave the game with a pulled groin muscle after Clark stung a single after the home runs.

Ralwy Eastwick relieved Forsch and got the side out.

San Francisco added a third run in the sixth inning on four hits.

Thomasson opened the inning with a single but was caught in a double play after Hill struck out.

LaMaster and Halicki then singled and Derryl Thomas belted a double to center, scoring Johnny. Rob Andrews walked but Madlock grounded out to end the inning.

St. Louis scored its first run seventh on two singles by Templeton and Dane Lang and a sacrifice by Simmons.

The Giants added their fourth run in the bottom of the seventh after one out. Clark singled and was sacrificed to second by Thomasson. Hill then brought Clark in with a double.

The Cardinals used seven pitchers in the contest and the Giants used five. Randy Moffitt relieved Lavelle and Charlie Williams pitched three scoreless innings before Heaverlo took over in the 14th.

Madlock, who hits his first home runs since July 10th, did not seem especially pleased to hit the homers.

"Heck, I'd rather have eight singles," he smiled. "I'm not a home run hitter and I haven't been getting many RBI's. However, I've been leading off a lot except for today and it's hard to get RBI's that way."

Madlock batted third in the line-up yesterday but wishes he could bat in one position.

"I just feel I could help the team more than way," he said.

Altobelli praised Halicki's effort but defended his decision to relieve the Giant starter when he did.

Raiders crush 49ers

OAKLAND — Silver proved more valuable than gold as the Bay Bowl turned into the bay bombing, as the Oakland Raiders, routed the San Francisco 49ers before a sell-out crowd at the Coliseum last night.

The final score was 33-0.

It would be safe to say the 49ers were never in this one. They lost a yard passing in the first quarter and finished the half with only 45 yards to show for their 22 offensive plays.

After two quarters, they'd made only two first downs, neither of which was earned after a third down.

Errol Mann, who fell behind in the fight for the Raider place-kicking job when he missed a later 22-yarder, put the Raiders ahead with a 24-yard field goal four minutes into the game.

His competition, Rolf Benirschke, made it 6-0 with a 47-yarder that never climbed above 12 feet in altitude.

Oakland's first touchdown was reminiscent of the Raiders' championship season of a year ago. After Clarence Davis sprang up the middle for 21 yards to the San Francisco twenty, Ken Stabler lofted a touchdown pass to a wide-open Dave Caspar.

Early in the second quarter, the Raiders went up by 20. Another Stabler-to-Caspar pass over the middle set up the score.

Davis, who rushed for 54 yards in the first half, accounted for the points with a two-yard sprint around left end.

Seconds before the half, Benirschke capped a miniature Oakland thrust with a 38-yard field goal.

By this time, Quarterback Jim Plunkett, who had passed for 46 yards, was the 49ers' biggest offensive achiever. Yet most of those came on a frantic scrambling toss that Gene Washington made a sensational play to catch. San Francisco running backs had netted only 14 yards on 13 carries as the national television audience saw little of the magic Wilber Jackson and Del Williams created a year ago.

Detroit rallies to beat Oakland

DETROIT — Tim Corcoran drove in two runs with a pinch-hit single and Tito Fuentes and Rusty Staub each singled home runs as the Detroit Tigers rallied for four runs in the eighth inning Saturday to defeat the Oakland A's 10-8.

Staub drove in three Tigers runs, two with a homer in the seventh, and also accounted for a run in the first when he hit into a double play.

Ed Glynn, the third of four Detroit pitchers, picked up the victory in his first appearance of the year, while Steve Foucault gained his 11th save.

Bob Lacey, the third of four Oakland pitchers, took the loss, dropping his record to 3-7.

Mayn leads Ballistic

CALGARY, CANADA — Kevin Mayn had two consecutive hat tricks yesterday to lead Ballistic United of Pleasanton into the semifinals of the Calgary Minor Soccer Association Invitational Tournament here.

Ballistic United, defending champion in the 12-year-old division of the large, prestigious tournament, defeated Lake Bonavista of Calgary, 7-2, and shut out Winnipeg, Manitoba, 3-0.

The Pleasanton team fell behind early in its first game, as Lake Bonavista jumped to a quick 2-0 lead in the first ten minutes on goals by Charles Goodson and Sam Towers.

Ballistic's Mike Deusterhaus finally got his team on the scoreboard with an assisted goal from six yards out with 18 minutes gone in the first half. Three minutes later, Mayn scored the first of his three goals in the game from eight yards away on a cross from Brandon Baxter.

Lennie McMillin then rifled a shot over the goalies' head from 25 yards out to give Ballistic a 3-2 lead.

The second half was all Ballistic. Deusterhaus started the scoring at the five-minute mark on another cross from Baxter. Mayn then scored twice and Baxter once, all on unassisted plays.

Ballistic coach Harry Miller praised the defensive play of fullbacks Nicky Pearson and Paul Shuey and halfbacks Marty Faris and Gordon Lang.

In its game against Winnipeg, Ballistic took a 1-0 halftime lead on a perfect pass by Baxter, which Mayn headed into the goal.

Mayn scored again with 13 minutes gone in the second half on an assist from Gary Daniels. At 23 minutes, Mayn again put the ball in from short range, using a Daniels pass.

Ballistic meets Thorncliff, from Calgary, this morning in the semi-finals.

"We hear they're the strongest team in Calgary, and are undefeated so far this season," said Miller. He added that it appears that Thorncliff is the toughest team remaining in the tournament.

Oh surpasses Aaron

TOKYO — Sadaharu Oh smashed the 756th home run of his 19-year pro baseball career before 50,000 roaring fans here Saturday night, blasting his 40th home run of the season and exceeding the American record held by Hank Aaron.

The 37-year-old left-handed slugger connected for the historic home run in the bottom of the third inning off pitcher Kojiro Suzuki of the Yakult Swallows.

Oh sent the sixth pitch over the right-field fence and circled the bases for the 756th time before the vocal throng at Korakuen Stadium. It was at this park, home of the Giants, that Oh tied Aaron's lifetime major league total of 755 on Wednesday.

Aaron retired from active playing in October, 1976.

The record-breaking shot came on Oh's 7,878th career trip to the plate and in his 2,428th game.

Some baseball experts in the United States and elsewhere challenge Oh's mark, arguing that American major league ball is of higher caliber and that fields are smaller in Japan. So far as the baseball-happy Japanese were concerned, however, Oh was the home run king of the world.

Oh, known as Japan's Babe Ruth, was the second man to break Ruth's lifetime record of 714 homers. He accomplished that feat in October, 1976, just 30 months after Aaron broke the mark in Atlanta on April 18, 1974.

Oh recorded his first home run in this same Korakuen Stadium, home park of the Giants, on April 26, 1959, off Genichi Murata of the Kokutetsu Swallows —now the Yakult Swallows.

Oh, known as Japan's Babe Ruth, has an unorthodox batting style. He raises his right foot high as the pitcher starts his delivery, steps down with his right foot as he swings and takes a hard cut at the ball. He has frequently hit the ball out of the stadium and into the street.

Wan-chan, the nickname for Oh, is the highest-paid player in Japan, making a salary estimated more than $200,000.

Area reps to present MD check on Telethon

Organizations from the Valley will be presenting checks and contributing to the running of the annual Labor Day Muscular Dystrophy Telethon, which will begin at 6 p.m., Sept. 4 on KTVU, Channel 2.

Dennis Fanucchi of Livermore's Granada Bowl will make an appearance on the telethon, which is broadcast live from the Sheraton Palace Hotel in San Francisco. Fanucchi will appear Monday, Sept. 5 at 8:15 a.m. to present a $4300 check to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The money, which was raised by the Pleasanton Jaycees and Granada Bowl, is the proceeds from the 24-hour Bowl-a-Thon held earlier this month. Don Mason and Bill Simpson, who were also instrumental in helping to raise the money, will be on television for the presentation of the check, in addition to Fanucchi.

Valley residents who wish to pledge money for the telethon can call the local toll-free number, 829-2020. The money raised from the Valley will be collected at the Shannon Center in Dublin, where volunteers will be manning the phones and taking pledges for 22 hours, also beginning at 6 p.m., Sept. 4.

Residents are invited to visit the Shannon Center, either to donate money, make pledges or see how the telethon works, anytime during the show.

"O'Ryan," Wes Chapman's local group, will entertain visitors and volunteers at the Center on Labor Day from noon to 2 p.m.

National segments of the telethon will feature appearances by Tony Bennett, Frank Sinatra, Charo, Barry Manilow, Ed McMahon and many others. The show, which comes live from Las Vegas, will again be hosted by entertainer Jerry Lewis.

Pals?

Last year's Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association reunited the comedian and his former partner, Dean Martin, for the first time in 20 years. Will Dean be back for this year's show? Nobody knows for sure, but to find out tune KTVU, Channel 2, beginning at 6 p.m. today.

Bank forecasts $2 billion drop, but bright spots, in farm income

The Bank of America has announced it projects farm income in California to drop 14.1 per cent to $2 billion for 1977. Gross farm income was projected to rise by 0.3 per cent to $9.5 billion.

The forecast came in a bank report "California Outlook: Agriculture 1977." Overall, the report concluded, agriculture will fare relatively well despite a mixed agricultural situation and the state's driest year on record.

As part of that mixed situation the report states cash receipts for cattle and calves, poultry and eggs and field crops except cotton would decline but there is a projected increase for other dairy products, vegetables, fruits and nuts.

The report said water shortages in the Central Valley where eight counties produce 43 per cent of the state's livestock and 50 per cent of its livestock and poultry products would be critical. The lack of rain has meant an increased dependence on irrigation and surface water supplies continue to diminish.

Receipts for livestock and livestock products will fall almost 4 per cent to $2.8 billion because of a drop in calf and cattle sales. The drought has forced production costs up though nationwide cattle prices have remained depressed in a "liquidation cycle," according to the bank. The report forecast an improvement in the industry for later this year as feed costs drop and livestock prices rise again.

Overall dairy receipts are projected to exceed $1.1 billion, an increase of 5.3 percent over 1976.

Poultry and egg receipts are expected to be $600 million, a decline of 3 per cent from last year. Nationwide egg prices are expected to drop about 8 cents per dozen from 58 cents last year.

Field crop cash receipts are expected to plunge 19 per cent to $2.1 billion due to drought-reduce fields, fewer plantings, and lower grain and sugar prices. Both the rice and sugar beet crops were reduced this year, rice by 18 per cent and beets by 26 per cent. Cotton prices rose this year in response to increased demand worldwide. In Fresno the price rose from 57 cents to 80 cents in a year. Overall cotton acreage totals 1.35 million acres, the largest planting since 1953.

Vegetable cash receipts are projected to reach $1.8 billion, an increase of 15 per cent due to favorable market prices and a strong tomato crop. A statewide total of 6.4 million tons of tomatoes is forecast, valued at $350 million compared with $285 million last year.

The report stated that while drought reduced the state's fruit and nut crops the production and gross receipts should still rise over last year's levels.

Tax relief fails but school finance wins in Sacramento

SACRAMENTO (AP) — It's back to the drawing board for Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. and legislative leaders, whose elaborate proposal to give property tax rebates to 6.5 million California households collapsed in the state Senate.

Brown must also decide what to cut from a five-year, $4.28-billion school finance bill, which reached his desk alone Friday. He had been hoping to sign it in tandem with the tax bill to keep a lid on their total cost.

An alliance of Republicans and liberals and conservative Democrats in the Senate buried the tax bill Friday under a 16-23 vote, with a two-thirds majority of 27 needed for passage. The Assembly had approved it 56-22.

The Democratic governor said he still expects approval of a property tax relief measure "but exactly how and when is not clear."

"Anything's possible — a special session, an initiative, a solution next week or one a few weeks later," Brown told reporters.

The reference to an initiative indicated he wasn't ruling out the failure of the legislature to agree on a tax bill.

The Democratic leaders of the legislature, Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy and Senate President pro tem James Mills, said they doubted a tax bill could pass before Sept. 15, when the legislature is scheduled to recess for the year.

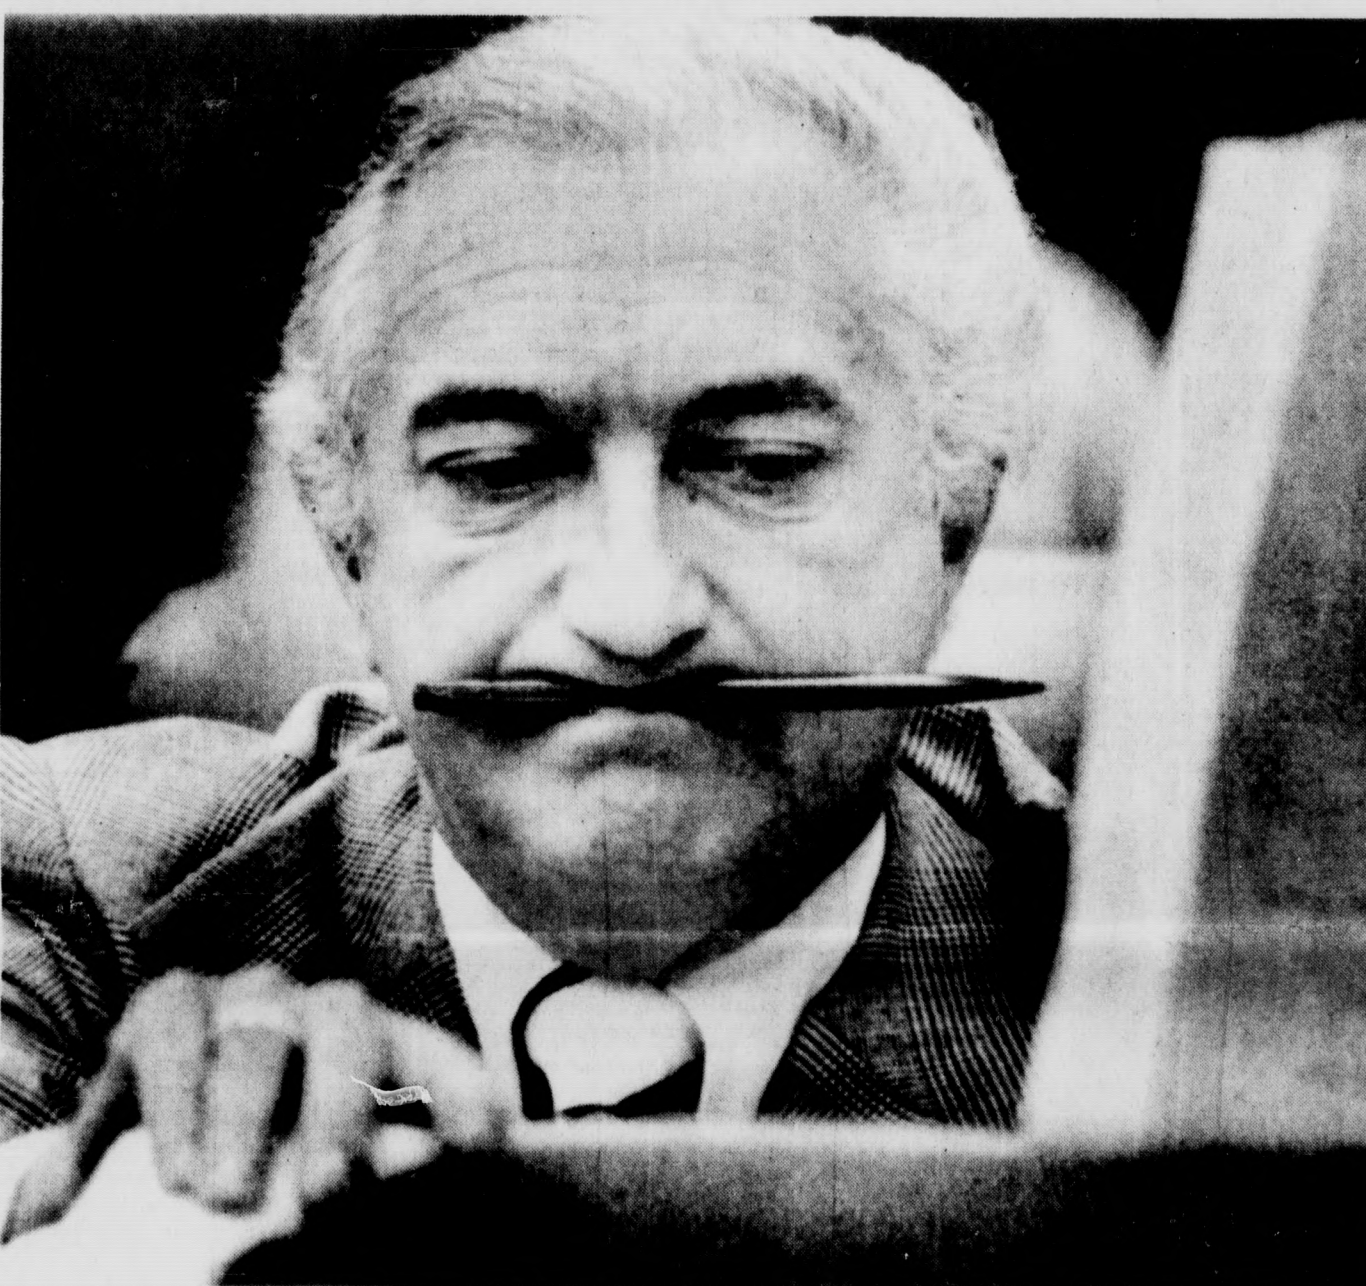

The school finance bill, which would narrow the funding gap between rich and poor school districts in response to the state Supreme Court's Serrano decision, won votes of 67-10 in the Assembly and 32-6 in the Senate.

Starting in 1978-79, the bill would shift some tax revenues from school districts with high property wealth to low-wealth districts. By 1981-82 districts with 80 per cent of the students — all but the wealthiest — could raise equal revenue for the same tax dollar.

The tax bill offered $4.76 billion in tax relief for homeowners, renters and businesses over five years. In 1978, nearly 4 million homeowners with incomes under $40,000 were to get rebate checks averaging $218, and 2.5 million renters making under $11,300 were to get checks averaging $110.

Rebates were to be based on income and the size of one's tax bill. A family making $20,000 and living in a $64,000 home in an average county would get $539. A family making $30,000 in the same home would get $278.

The bill also would have eliminated the $484-million business inventory tax in 1979-80; set some limits on state and local revenues; increased overall taxes on businesses and on new construction, and allowed some new local taxes.

Tax relief bill defeated

Sen. Nicholas Petris (D-Oakland) checked through his papers on the Senate floor at the state Capitol Friday as his property tax relief bill from a joint conference committee went down in defeat on a 16 to 23 vote. It's back to the drawing boards for another try. (AP Wirephoto)

Desegregation, finances plague huge Chicago school district

By DAVID TREADWELL

CHICAGO (AP) — The "happy face" buttons school Superintendent Joseph Hannon passes out to visitors are about the only smiles seen these days in the nation's third-largest school district.

Angry parents on the city's predominantly white Southwest Side are protesting a voluntary desegregation plan. Teachers, who haven't had a raise in two years, are determined to get one this fall despite the school board's anticipated $77-million deficit. And principals are complaining of political "cronyism" in promotion procedures.

Even Hannon, who had 50,000 of the buttons made up two years ago when he took over the beleaguered schools, has lost some of his characteristic optimism.

"We're moving on many fronts that will make a better city and better schools, but we need support," said the 44-year-old school chief. "The federal government and the state, especially, are being judge, jury and hangman, without making any effort to help us."

Hannon's situation is typical of big-city school officials faced with government-mandated programs, demands by teachers and parents, higher costs, shrinking enrollments and low student achievement.

Both Los Angeles and Philadelphia are under orders to create desegregation plans, and the federal government has threatened to withdraw $300 million in aid from New York schools because of alleged faculty discrimination.

The Illinois Board of Education forced Chicago to move toward student desegregation by threatening to cut off state funds. The voluntary busing program to begin this week is the first of several steps toward a major integration effort in 1978.

The busing plan allows students in certain overcrowded schools — nearly all in black neighborhoods — to transfer to less-used schools in other sections of the city — mostly white neighborhoods.

But Hannon says "there's not a sou" from state or federal governments to help defray the half-million dollar cost of the plan.

Moreover, the plan has met militant opposition from some white parents, even though the number of minority students enrolled so far is about 700 of the 6,573 eligible to switch schools.

School officials anticipate a total enrollment of 511,000 students when classrooms open Wednesday — down 13,000 students from last year. The city has a 75 per cent minority school population, mostly black.

The schools also face a possible teachers' strike. Teachers, already the nation's highest paid with starting salaries of $11,138, want a 7 per cent cost-of-living increase that would cost $35 million.

The teachers union agreed to unchanged salaries in the last school year when the board faced a $115 million deficit. Union and school officials have agreed to extend the contract while negotiations continue. Union President Robert Healey says this assures school will open on time, but doesn't mean there won't be a strike.

The board adopted the plan after the Department of Health, Education and Welfare threatened to cut off $90 million in education funds unless there was more racial balance in school staffing.

Good management key to profit from rentals

SAN FRANCISCO — Management know-how is the key to successful and profitable — operation of rental property, Bank of America says in the issue of Small Business Reporter released today.

Whether it is a single family dwelling or 50-unit apartment building, "efficient management can maximize profits generated from rental income, enhance a property's appreciating value, and increase the owner's equity buildup," the bank says in its report, "Property Management." Conversely, the report continues, neglected property can depreciate, and an owner operating on a narrow margin can easily lose the investment.

A landlord's job can be harder than it looks, says the bank. Business and maintenance skills are needed. Too often, prospective investors underestimate the hours and work needed to maintain property. But, the report advises, for individuals who handle the job professionally, "investing in income-producing property can be a lucrative venture."

The first job for new landlords, says the bank, is to tackle needed major repairs. In some areas, owners can save money by doing the work themselves. Elsewhere, building codes require professionals. Local building departments, the bank suggests, can verify the different kinds of work that local codes permit non-professionals to handle. If a contractor is required, competitive written bids should be obtained, detailing both beginning and completion dates. As one owner cautions, don't jump for the low bid. "Know exactly what you are getting for your money," he advises.

Tenants should be asked to report major and minor maintenance problems and landlords should make repairs as soon as possible. Tenants should also check with the owner before redecorating. Renters have been known to damage property in their improvements, the report cautions.

Tenants should sign a rental agreement form for a specified amount of rent and a fixed period of time, the report suggests. The agreement should stipulate the facilities covered and the amounts of the security deposit and cleaning fee. The average deposit, says the bank, runs between $100 and $200 and is refundable when the tenants move out if the property is left in good order. If tenants have pets, landlords should consider an extra deposit to cover the higher risk of damage.

Cleaning costs should be substantiated by receipts, the bank advises, and the difference should be refunded two weeks after the tenants vacate.

To avoid disputes over cleaning and damages, the owner should first prepare a checklist, indicating the condition of the property, then tour the rental unit with the tenant. Copies of the checklist, signed by both owner and tenant, should be attached to the lease agreement. As a guide, the report includes a sample of an apartment checklist to help owners complete this essential step.

Under California codes, buildings with more than 15 units need someone always on hand — either an owner or a property manager, the report says. In the past, a long-term tenant could receive a free apartment and, perhaps, a monthly retainer "for acting as manager," the report notes. Today, managers must be regarded as regular employees. "If an owner wishes to pay part of the manager's salary in the form of free or reduced rent," the report continues, "strict guidelines must be followed."

Managers of income property play important roles and should be hired with care, the report suggests. They should carry out landlord's policies in a firm, but tactful way.

Landlords should calculate operating costs and maintain good records. Paperwork may be unpleasant, says the bank, but it can sometimes mean the difference between a good or bad return on an owner's investment.

"Property Management" is available at all Bank of America branches.

Sorely needed housing is being delayed

Housing crisis feared for Californians buyers

SAN LEANDRO — California is facing another housing crisis, according to Walker and Lee Market Research Division analyst Howard Englander.

"We are on the verge of a housing crisis," Englander told members of the Young Home Builders here this week. And Englander blames municipal planners and Green Panthers for this statewide situation.

Th Walker and Lee executive, his firm is one of the nation's largest residential real estate firms, said "Planners, who serve the public sector when it comes to meeting the state's need for housing."

Englander said planners and Green Panther types are not aware of the basic market realities. The analyst said their actions are delaying needed family housing and planning postponements are adding to the cost of home building.

"These costs are driving the first-time buyer out of the single-family, detached market," Englander said.

Looking ahead, if these trends continue, Englander told his Blue Dolphin Restaurant audience, the single-family home of tomorrow in Walnut Creek might cost $250,000.

Englander, saying that he is an old environmentalist ("I believe in trees"), declared that planning commissions, city councils and supervisors are not meeting the needs of the people when it concerns housing.

"Some moratoriums are legitimate. Building should be stopped when sewer lines are overtaxed," Englander said. But, he added, "Many stop growth actions are illegitimate in the face of our housing demand."

Englander said the equity market has evaporated. "The second generation move-up ($70,000 to $100,000 home range) buyer is not active in today's market."

"Historically, the equity market always outstrips itself," Englander said.

He agrees with William Lyon Co. executive Dick Randall, who recently spoke on the same topic before the Contra Costa Board of Realtors, that the townhouse is on its way back in popularity.

"The townhouse (in the $50,000 to $60,000 range) is becoming a very alluring purchase," Englander reported that surveys reveal that more families are buying the townhouse concept.

"In the past, the townhouse buyer has been the empty nester or young professional. Now we find more families interested in this style of living."

"Many first-time home buyers are moving into the townhouse market," Englander told builders the townhouse now has achieved price value in the face of escalating costs for single-family, detached housing.

Dealing on a grand scale

By BOB NOREK

SAN FRANCISCO — More than 150 buyers and sellers of large-scale commercial real estate property met here Tuesday to discuss deals which could involve between $1.5 and $1.9 billion during the West Coast's first International Market Day.

Attending The City-

Based American Real Estate Exchange (AMREX) sponsored clearing house activity were representatives of domestic and international institutions, a wheeler-and-dealer wearing a crushed sweat-stained 10-gallon cowboy hat and a former state lieutenant governor.

According to Gerald Jackson, AMREX chairman and president, more than 500 parcels of property were involved in the jam-packed Market Day negotiations.

The former Orindan, who founded AMREX eight years ago, said these properties ranged from a San Francisco city block to cattle ranches to Caribbean resort land to the alpine home of German actor Horst Buchholz.

Jackson, whose firm is the nation's only clearing house for large-scale real estate buyers and sellers, said the Market Day concept was arrived at by AM-

Building permits back off after record $370 million for June

San Francisco — Building permit authorizations in the 16 Northern Coastal counties totaled $267 million in July, reports Security Pacific Bank, down 28 per cent from the record $370 million June figure.

Gerald McIntyre, vice president and administrator of the bank's Real Estate Finance Department in San Francisco, said that the July decline should be assessed against the backdrop of two factors. "The July decline occurred after an all-time record level of activity during June," he explained, "and, in light of the very high levels of residential construction in recent months, the July slowdown may be viewed as a stabilizing development."

He also reported that many of the region's new single-family homes are to be located in Alameda, Santa Clara and Solano counties. In addition, much of the region's new multifamily homebuilding during July occurred in Santa Clara County.

McIntyre based his report on data compiled by Security Pacific Bank's Research Department for the current issue of the bank's monthly publication, California Construction Trends, which this month features the 1978 homebuilding outlook for California.

Security Pacific Bank's Northern California real estate executive said that homebuilding permits issued during July totaled $191 million, down 26 per cent from June's all-time high of $258 million.

"Permits for conventional single-family homes approximated $133 million in July, compared with June's level of $183 million," McIntyre explained. "In contrast, permits for multiple dwelling units — duplexes, triplexes and apartments — totaled $55 million, representing a 29 per cent drop from the June level of $49 million."

Permits for residential alterations and additions comprised the balance of residential building permit activity for the month at $23 million, down 11 per cent from the $25 million June amount. This category has been quite strong in recent months; the rapidly rising price of purchasing a new home has convinced many owners to upgrade their existing home.

On the nonresidential side, McIntyre reported that Northern Coastal California's 16-county region registered $75 million in July, down one-third from June's pace of $113 million. "A positive note within the nonresidential sector," he added, "was an 11 per cent increase in alterations and additions, which edged upward from $12 million in June to $14 million in July."

Financing seminar to aid real estate buyers, sellers

A two-day seminar sponsored by the California Association of Realtors featuring innovative techniques of real estate financing of interest to both buyer and seller, will be held in San Diego.

"This creative financing seminar begins where the typical financing course ends," according to Ernie Spencer of Richmond, chairman of the Investment Division of the 100,000-member Realtor Association.

The seminar will be held Thursday and Friday, September 15-16 at the Vacation Village Hotel Mission Bay, San Diego.

Instructors for the two-day event are Realtors Reed Smith of Santa Rosa and Randy Howe of San Diego. Both are members of CAR's faculty and have extensive backgrounds in real estate and finance.

Smith spent several years as a developer and builder of single and multifamily homes prior to his general brokerage experience. He has spent the past six years as an Exchange/Investment Counselor, solving investment real estate problems and guiding client investment programs.

Howe, a director of the San Diego County Investment Multiple, serves as a faculty member for both CAR and the San Diego Community College, where he presented the nation's first television course on real estate investing.

"Imaginative, new and unusual techniques for structuring real estate transactions will be explored during the seminar," Spencer said. "Curriculum will include installment sales, all inclusive trust deeds, sale with repurchase option and other high points in financing." Technical and mathematical explanations of how and when financing techniques can be employed to benefit a buyer and seller will be explained by the instructors.

A unique study hall session will divide students into "think" teams, Spencer explained. Each team will be given 12 transactions requiring several workable solutions employing techniques of creative financing.

Enrollment fee is $60 for CAR Investment Division members and $75 for non-members ($15 of which will be applied to Division dues if a registrant is a CAR member). The fee includes the cost of a workbook and morning and afternoon coffee service. Interested persons should make checks payable to Investment Division, California Association of Realtors, 505 Shatto Place, Los Angeles, California 90020.

Prices go up — what's new?

The median sales price of an existing home in California continued to rise by a steady three per cent per month to hit a new high during the month of June of $62,431, a 30.4 per cent climb from a year ago when the median price was $47,875.

The figures, released today by Jerome Blank of Albany, president of the 100,000-member California Association of Realtors, were based on data taken from a cross-section sampling of some 29 member boards throughout the state, representing approximately 46.5 per cent of the organization's total membership.

In releasing the report, Blank noted that the California housing market, which took a dramatic upward spiral earlier this year, appears to be stabilizing at a "more reasonable relationship" to the overall rate of inflation and cost of living.

"The between-school months of June, July and August are traditionally high sales periods in the real estate industry," Blank explained. "While the actual number of sales increased by more than 16 per cent from the previous month, prices held within the three per cent range which has been the pattern for the past several months."

Blank sees several optimistic signs on the California housing horizon, noting that many leading home mortgage lenders have recently cut their rates for a "prime" home loan from 9 1/4-to-9 per cent despite signs that other interest rates may be rising. He also cites a trend toward growing consumer confidence as a positive factor for the state's housing market.

Three-bedroom homes, regardless of price range, continue to command the largest demand.

REX to bring together a fragmented industry. Jackson said, "The key to Market Day is that negotiations are conducted in a confidential atmosphere. Buyers work from a transcript of inventory which is identified only by a code, to protect the sellers' anonymity."

"Contacts are then made with the seller through a floor specialist, who informs an announcer to page a particular seller. After that, buyers and sellers are introduced and private negotiations begin," Jackson said.

"We are similar to the stock exchanges in many ways," the 42-year-old executive said, "but we are not an auction market."

"Sales won't be consummate on our floor. Our role is to bring the most qualified buyers and sellers together."

Participation in Tuesday's Stanford Court Hotel event were limited to institutions, principals and brokers with exclusives. No property under $1 million in value was accepted for listing. AMREX' fee is a percentage of the sale. A $1 million transaction nets the firm $5,000.

According to Jackson, approximately one-third of the Market Day participants represented potential buyers. Of those, about half were international buyers. Jackson estimated that 65 per cent of the buyers were institution representatives.

"Many of today's attendees have participated in prior Market Day sessions around the nation and others are here for the first time," Jackson said.

The AMREX president added the returns came to San Francisco because of the confidential atmosphere of the event and past personal successes. The new people because of location of Tuesday's activity and the success of prior Market Days.

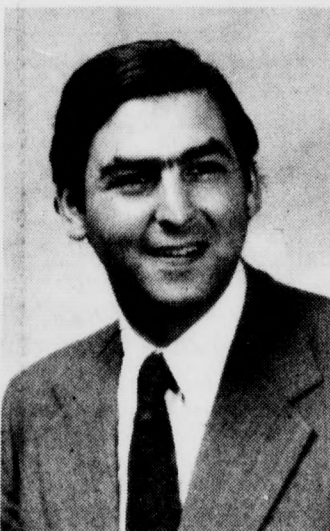

A newcomer to Market Day was former California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke. Reinecke, president of Sacramento's Western Resource Development Systems, said, "I'm here because I'm in the business."

Broker Reinecke said his firm's principal effort is in the area of large-scale commercial real estate. "We also handle smaller properties, too," Reinecke said.

The Market Day activity, the atmosphere resembled that of a stock exchange trading floor, is just the beginning for AMREX, Jackson said. In the next two years, AMREX plans to develop a national system of real estate transactions that will be very similar to the stock exchange method of trading.

AMREX expansion plans call for offices with trading areas in Los Angeles, Canada, Europe and the Orient. Jackson now has branches in New York City, Houston, Atlanta and Chicago (opens this month).

The next Market Day is scheduled for Chicago in October with Los Angeles hosting the event in November.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO CIRCULATE PETITION

Notice is hereby given of the intention of the persons whose names appear hereon of their intention to circulate the petition within the City of Pleasanton, State of California, for the purpose of repealing the resolution or resolutions of the City Council of Pleasanton supporting and approving the amendments to the Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency Joint Exercise of Powers Agreement. A statement of the reasons of the proposed action as contemplated in said petition is as follows:

The original Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency Joint Exercise of Powers Agreement required that any water quality management project exceeding 13 million gallons per day capacity or 1.5 million dollars local costs would not be adopted or implemented by the agency without the approval of the electorate. The project which the Agency has proposed exceeds both of these limitations. A larger but less costly project was submitted to the voters and rejected in November, 1976. Subsequently, the Agency has proposed amendments to the Agreement that would raise the capacity limitation to 15.62 million gallons per day and remove the cost limitation entirely, and further would authorize the financing of the project through the 1941 Revenue Bond Law. These changes in the limitations would allow the Agency to proceed with the proposed project without the approval of the electorate, in derogation of the original Agreement. The City Council of Pleasanton has passed resolutions urging the Agency to adopt these resolutions, and approving their adoption by the Agency. The Agency is therefore preparing to proceed with a water quality management project which has been rejected by the electorate, in derogation of the original Agreement. The action proposed by the petition would withdraw the approval of the City of Pleasanton with regard to these measures.

Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency project 18-0. A statement of the reasons of the proposed action is as follows:

The original Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency Joint Exercise of Powers Agreement required that any water quality management project exceeding 13 million gallons per day capacity or 1.5 million dollars costs would not be adopted or implemented by the Agency without the approval of the electorate. Subsequently, the Agency has proposed amendments to the Agreement that would raise the capacity limitation to 15.62 million gallons per day and remove the cost limitation entirely, and further would authorize the financing of the project through the 1941 Revenue Bond Law. These amendments were approved by the City Council of Pleasanton, Financing under the 1941 Revenue Bond Law would, however, be subject to a referendum by the electorate according to the laws of the State of California. To circumvent this provision of the law, the City of Pleasanton passed a resolution which would establish a pay-as-you-go sewer service charge to finance this project, in the event that the bond measure under the above statute is defeated by the referendum. The Agency and the City of Pleasanton are preparing, therefore, to finance the project which was rejected by the electorate without requiring any voter approval for any financing measure adopted. The action proposed by the petition would repeal the pay-as-you-go alternative financing measure and require that financing of the water quality management project be subject to referendum as provided by California law.
